Pro Bono Service by In-House Counsel

Strategies and Perspectives

David P. Hackett, Editor

In-house lawyers are increasingly undertaking the kinds of pro bono activities that have been typical of lawyers at law firms. This book not only describes what they are doing and how others can follow in their steps, but also seeks to convey some of the inspiration that motivates them to be volunteers. The contributors—who come from corporate law departments, law firms, corporations, not-for-profit organizations, humanitarian groups, and universities—share their success stories, the challenges they have faced, and their practical experiences and advice. As Judge Robert A. Katzmman states in his Foreword: “For in-house corporate counsel who want to start, maintain, and expand company pro bono legal services, this volume is must reading.”
